Chief Constable's Foreword

Policing in Northern Ireland continues against a backdrop of real complexity and sustained day-to-day demand. At its heart, however, remains a simple and enduring purpose: keeping people safe, supporting those in need and working alongside communities to prevent harm. This month's Report reflects where the Police Service stands today, the pressures faced, the progress being made and, above all, the dedication of officers and staff who serve every neighbourhood and community. It is also an opportunity to acknowledge strong public interest in a career in policing, sustained operational commitment across local and specialist teams, and practical steps to strengthen how we respond to community concerns, even as we confront difficult choices about resources and investment that will shape policing in the years ahead.

The much needed additional funding allocated after December Monitoring means we are now aiming for a break even position on both resource and capital budgets. This is an important element in our ambition to stabilise the Service this year. As reported last month, the Proposed Draft Budget published in January offered some hope of a multi-year settlement, support for our Recovery Plan and funding to settle the Data Breach claims. Our initial assessment was that, although the earmarked funding was welcome, PSNI would continue to face a significant funding deficit next year and into the future. Since then, PSNI has been issued with an 'Indicative Allocation' by the Department of Justice for resource spending from 2026-27 to 2028-29 and for capital in 2026-27 only. Work is well advanced in preparing a Draft Resource Plan on this basis, but current estimates identify pressures of approximately £65m next year, rising to £168m by 2028-29. These figures will be refined, but they provide a stark picture of the ongoing funding challenge. Similarly, the indicative capital budget for 2026-27 is £52m, almost £20m short of our estimated requirement and £14m less than the current year, necessitating prioritisation that will inevitably have significant impact.

Although progress has been made, much remains to be done to place policing on a stable financial footing and safeguard capability into the future. I welcome the evidence given on 25 February 2026 by the Chair, Vice-Chair and Chief Executive of the Northern Ireland Policing Board to the Northern Ireland Affairs Committee, outlining the Board's perspectives on police funding, recruitment and service delivery. I am grateful for their continued advocacy on behalf of policing in Northern Ireland.

I am delighted with the strong response to the 2026 Student Officer Recruitment Campaign, with a total of 4,104 applications. This level of interest is encouraging and demonstrates public recognition of policing as a vocation and a way to make a positive difference in people's lives. Successful applicants will progress through a rigorous multi-stage selection process ahead of an intensive 22-week training programme at the Police College, Garnerville, where they will develop the practical, mental and physical skills required for operational policing. February saw the first attestation of student officers progressing through our enhanced intake cohorts of 51 recruits. These larger intakes will begin to strengthen operational capacity and resilience across districts in the months ahead. I wish each of these new officers every success as they embark on a demanding but deeply rewarding policing career.

A representative workforce remains fundamental to effective community focused policing. We are committed to building an organisation reflective of all communities and backgrounds so that we operate with legitimacy, resilience and local understanding. Learning from this and previous recruitment campaigns is informing a targeted action plan to better understand and address the barriers faced by under-represented groups when considering a career in policing. I again call on leaders and communities across our society to advocate positively for policing as a career of choice and to support our efforts to attract the very best from all backgrounds to join this fantastic organisation and deliver the most valuable and rewarding public service.

This year marks 25 years since the introduction of the new policing arrangements. The anniversary provides an important opportunity to reflect on the transformation from the Royal Ulster Constabulary GC to the modern Police Service of Northern Ireland, recognising the dedication and sacrifice of officers and staff who have served communities across Northern Ireland throughout that period. We will develop a programme of events to honour past achievements, renew pride in the Service's vital role today and set a positive course for the years ahead, supported by a modern, innovative and professional police service committed to meeting the evolving needs of the public.

We are also working with the Northern Ireland Policing Board to consider how best to mark this significant milestone, including the development of proposals for an anniversary conference.

I am keen that these anniversary events provide space for a genuine public debate about what we have done, and what more must be done, to ensure that the PSNI workforce is representative of the communities we serve and that policing is seen as a normal and valued career choice. This is a critical success factor in sustaining trust and confidence for the next generation. We all share a responsibility to advocate positively for policing as a profession and to support those who choose to serve a society that continues to evolve beyond conflict.

I am personally determined that we bring into the open the issues that may discourage individuals or families from recommending policing as a career, and that we work collectively to create clear pathways for those attracted to policing to apply in the knowledge that they will have community support. I have consistently said that policing is the most rewarding career a person can choose, it carries immense responsibility, but it also offers the rare opportunity to make a tangible difference to people's lives, to protect society and to help shape a safer future for the next generation.

In that regard, I am profoundly saddened by the recent loss of lives on our roads. Such tragedies have a lasting impact on families, friends and communities, and my thoughts and deepest sympathies are with all those affected. The human cost of every road death is immeasurable.

Road safety remains a strategic priority. Our approach places prevention at its centre. Sustained reductions in harm depend on proactive community education and engagement, reinforcing the risks of speeding, impaired or distracted driving and the life-saving importance of wearing seatbelts. Enforcement remains an essential deterrent. In recent weeks, despite weather warnings, officers and Road Safety Camera Vans recorded 779 speeding detections across enforcement days on 30 January and 6 February, including a detected speed of 97mph, alongside other offences such as drink and drug driving, mobile phone use, failure to wear seatbelts and driving without insurance. We will sustain Operation Lifesaver and focus patrol activity where intelligence indicates the greatest risk, while deepening collaboration with communities, schools and partner agencies to change behaviour before collisions occur. I call on every road user to play their part by driving responsibly, slowing down, never driving under the influence of drink or drugs, avoiding mobile phone use and always wearing a seatbelt, so that fewer families are forced to endure the grief of sudden bereavement. We can save lives by doing these very basic things.

Since my last update, we have published clear operational guidance on responding to complaints about public displays in public spaces, which provides a consistent framework for assessment, engagement and proportionate action. This guidance clarifies decision making to support officers to work with communities and partners, while respecting legal and human rights obligations. Statutory partnership working is central to the resolution of these issues and we will continue to work closely with these partners to ensure there is a collective focus on protecting community relations and public trust.

Alongside these operational priorities, we continue to strengthen governance and accountability across areas of significant public concern.

I welcome the publication of the recent Criminal Justice Inspection Northern Ireland report into Child Criminal Exploitation and accept its findings as an important catalyst for improvement. Children who are exploited are victims first, and I am determined to ensure they are seen, heard and safeguarded while those who exploit them are held to account. We have strengthened governance, improved data recording and embedded awareness across training and investigative practice, and will continue to work with justice partners, academia and communities to refine our response and ensure collective effort delivers better outcomes for vulnerable children.

On 26 February, I had the privilege of hosting our Long Service and Good Conduct Awards Ceremony, where, in the presence of family and friends, we recognised 40 officers and staff for their sustained contribution to policing.

These occasions provide an important opportunity to acknowledge the dedication and exemplary commitment of colleagues whose years of duty represent professionalism, sacrifice and public service at its very best.

I also wish to recognise the strong representation of the PSNI at this year's Blue Light Awards, which celebrated the dedication and extraordinary achievements of emergency services across Northern Ireland. PSNI were awarded Highly Commended for Blue Light Emergency Service of the Year Award and the Bravery and Courage Award (ARV Belfast). Winners included the following - Team of the Year (Navy Team, Organised Crime), Unsung Hero (Crime Department) and Innovation and Operational Excellence (ACC Davy Beck). I wish to extend special congratulations to the award winners on their well-deserved recognition. I am immensely proud that their unwavering commitment has been acknowledged alongside colleagues from across our partner services, reflecting the strength of our collective service to the public.

Finally, I want to pay tribute to the incredible dedication and professionalism of our officers and staff. This month's report once again demonstrates their sustained operational focus on tackling organised criminality, disrupting drug supply networks and protecting those most vulnerable to violence and exploitation. Detectives and Local Policing Teams have dismantled organised crime groups across districts, while Public Protection Branch and Neighbourhood Policing Teams have strengthened safeguarding interventions and community engagement, including targeted listening events designed to improve accessibility and trust. That commitment to protection is exemplified in the actions of Local Policing and District Support Team officers in Magherafelt and Cookstown who administered CPR to a six-year-old child in cardiac arrest, sustaining life until ambulance crews arrived. Intervention that medical staff confirmed was critical to the child's survival.

This is why being a member of the PSNI carries such responsibility, a responsibility our workforce meets every day through exceptional professionalism, courage and determination, often under unrelenting operational demand. I am proud of their commitment to protecting all the people of Northern Ireland.

Domestic Abuse Homicide

In the 12 months from 1 February 2025 to 31 January 2026 there were seven homicides with a domestic abuse motivation recorded by the police, matching the level of domestic abuse homicides recorded in the previous 12 months. Four of the victims were female and three were male, compared with six female victims and one male victim during the previous 12 months. All seven domestic abuse homicides were murder offences.

What is the difference between a domestic abuse incident and crime recorded by the police?

Not all domestic abuse incidents will result in the recording of a crime, as what has occurred in the incident may not be of the level of severity that would result in a domestic abuse crime being recorded. Some domestic abuse incidents will result in multiple crimes being recorded. Domestic abuse crimes are included in the incident count and the two should not be added together.

Outcome 1

Victim Focused

Protecting victims and reducing harm across communities remains our operational priority. During this reporting period, detectives and local policing teams have addressed serious violence within families, sexual offending, drug trafficking, paramilitary linked criminality, burglaries, illegal money lending and human trafficking.

Across public protection and serious crime investigations, our focus has been on identifying hidden victims, disrupting organised criminal activity and ensuring that offenders are brought before the courts. At the same time, we continue to target those who exploit vulnerability for financial gain or control, recognising the long-term harm caused by coercion, intimidation and criminal enterprise within communities.

The activity outlined below demonstrates our continued commitment to safeguarding the most vulnerable, dismantling organised criminality and strengthening protection for individuals and communities affected by harm.

Local Policing

Organised Crime and Drug Supply

Across multiple districts, coordinated operations have disrupted organised criminal groups involved in cannabis cultivation and drug supply.

In Derry City and Strabane, officers dismantled a cannabis factory linked to a Lithuanian organised crime group, recovering plants with an estimated street value of approximately £350,000 and arresting four individuals who remain on remand. A further day of action targeting drug supply, led by the District Support Team (DST) and involving four TSG units, Dog Unit, DST teams from Lisburn and Ballymena and Local Policing officers, resulted in seven arrests and the seizure of Class A, B and C controlled drugs.

In North Area, a C District DST led cross-district operation targeting cannabis cultivation linked to a Vietnamese Organised Crime Group resulted in five arrests and the dismantling of five cultivation sites. Over 600 plants were seized with an estimated street value of £300,000 - £400,000, alongside five kilograms of herbal cannabis. This coordinated effort across districts demonstrates effective disruption of organised criminal supply chains.

In South Area, a search operation in Enniskillen involving the local NPT and District Support Teams led to the seizure of over 400 grams of cocaine, £4,500 in cash and related paraphernalia.

Two suspects have been identified and investigations continue. A separate vehicle stop by NPT officers resulted in the seizure of 7.5kg of suspected cannabis. A suspect has been arrested and charged to court. These successes have disrupted local drug distribution networks.

Burglary and Commercial Crime

In Belfast, a sustained investigation into a series of commercial burglaries between May 2024 and February 2025, affecting multiple commercial businesses, has resulted in the arrest and charging of a man. He pleaded guilty to 17 burglaries, six counts of fraud by false representation and one theft offence. The complex investigation combined analytical support, CCTV review and strong engagement between local Neighbourhood Policing Teams to identify the suspect and provide reassurance to affected business communities.

In South Belfast, rapid investigative work following the theft of electronic goods led to identification of the suspect through online marketplace activity. A search recovered stolen property and controlled drugs. The suspect has been charged to court.

In North Area, proactive patrols by Lisburn DST led to the arrest of a suspect linked to a recent series of 13 burglaries spanning two Police districts. Enquiries remain ongoing.

These investigations reflect continued focus on protecting local businesses and residents from acquisitive crime and providing visible reassurance.

Immediate Life-Saving Intervention

In February 2026, officers responded to a request for assistance from Northern Ireland Ambulance Service regarding a six-year-old child in cardiac arrest where the nearest ambulance was some 53 minutes away. Officers commenced CPR and continued life-saving intervention until paramedics arrived. Medical staff later confirmed that this early intervention proved critical to the child's survival.

This incident underscores the vital role officers play in emergency response and community protection beyond traditional enforcement activity.

Community Focused

Building and sustaining community confidence remains fundamental to effective policing. During this reporting period, the Service has continued structured engagement with communities whose voices are less frequently heard, alongside preventative initiatives addressing emerging harms affecting young people and vulnerable groups.

Public Protection Engagement Events

Public Protection Branch (PPB) has organised three bespoke listening events in March 2026, supported by funding from the Department of Justice.

These events will provide structured opportunities for:

- LGBTQ+ communities, older people and persons with disabilities in Derry/Londonderry to share their views and experiences of domestic abuse, sexual violence and the justice journey.
- Eastern European communities and persons with additional vulnerabilities in Portadown to share their experiences and ideas about personal and community safety, domestic abuse and access to support, and how services can be made more inclusive and accessible.
- Women from ethnic minority communities in Belfast to engage on hidden domestic abuse, barriers to seeking help and what would make support feel safer and more accessible.

These sessions are designed to inform service improvement, enhance accessibility and ensure our policing responses reflect lived experience and community need.

Safeguarding Children in the Digital Age

On 5 February 2026, PPB's Child Sexual Exploitation Lead contributed to an event for Head teachers and Chairs of Boards of Governors in Strangford focusing on smartphone and social media use among young people.

The presentation, Growing Up Online in Northern Ireland: Safeguarding Children in the Digital Age, addressed online harms, exploitation risks and preventative strategies. Local neighbourhood officers also attended to strengthen links between schools and policing teams.

This engagement reflects our commitment to a preventative approach to safeguarding children and supporting educational partners in addressing emerging digital risks.
